An Artist of Note

An interesting and genial personage now in our midst, and who will be here for some months, is the English artist, H. J. Thaddeus, who came here from southern California. Probably Mr. Thaddeus' best known works are his portraits of the Popes—Leo XIII at the age of 75, and again at 87, also the late Pius X.

Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus are occupying the Larouette cottage on Lincoln street.

A Fine Donation To Our Public School

Last week's appeal, in the columns of the Pine Cone, to the people of Carmel for the donation of disc records to the public school, has resulted in a number of promises.

The big thing to report, however, is the fact that a very dear old lady—Mrs. H. L. Haskell—rejoicing that the school now has a splendid Victor instrument, has presented fifty high class records to the school. All this week the strains of beautiful music have been conveyed to the developing minds of the children.

The parents of Carmel as well as the school children owe to Mrs. Haskell a debt of gratitude.

This week many others are expected to come forth with one or more records.

Small money donations are desired to complete payment on the new machine.

And a cabinet must be provided to take care of the records.

Moving-Picture Shows For September

Pictures booked for exhibition at the Manzanita Theatre during this month are as follows:

Sign of the County Free Library

An event unique in the history of library development was celebrated recently all over this State. The event referred to is County Free Library Sign Day. A sign, recently adopted by the county free libraries of the State, is displayed at practically every branch of every one of the thirty-six counties that have put into operation the county free library plan.

So silently do the forces of education advance, and so quietly is each link in the chain of progress forged, that results are accepted as a matter of fact, and the golden event is here—unheralded.

With this another step in the progress of library service in California is taken. From a modest start in 1908, when the work was begun with the expenditure of about fifteen hundred dollars that year, county free library service has grown to include thirty-six counties, supplying over eighteen hundred branches; has accumulated nearly half a million volumes, and its income for this year is over $400,000.

The adoption of a uniform sign, to be displayed at every branch at which county free library service may be obtained, is a unifying step in the work, and calls especial attention to the main aims of the project—equal, economical and complete library service for everyone wherever he may happen to make his home.

The rapid growth of the work indicates that in a few years every county in California will have such a library service. It is as complete as possible, since the county service is supplemented by the State library at Sacramento, and through it, by access to large libraries elsewhere.

The people of Monterey county, Carmel included, have been enjoying the county free library privileges since September, 1913, when the library was established by the Board of Supervisors. There are now forty branches in the county. Twenty-one schools have also affiliated and are receiving a service many times more efficient than what their own library funds would permit.

Local Artists to Exhibit

Among the artists who will exhibit canvases at the State Fair at Sacramento are the following from this section: M. DeNeale Morgan, Channel P. Townsley, William P. Silva, William C. Watts and Detlef Sammann.

TO THE VOTERS AND TAX-PAYERS OF THE 5TH SUPERVISORIAL DISTRICT

I desire to take this opportunity of expressing my deepest gratitude to the voters and tax-payers of the Fifth District for the strong support given me in my campaign for re-election to the office of Supervisor of Monterey County.

The appreciation of my past efforts and services rendered in behalf of this district, as expressed by the overwhelming vote cast in my favor at the polls last Tuesday, lends me new confidence and energy to bend every ambition within me to merit the confidence bestowed in me.

The Office Will Seek The Man

The Pine Cone has received word from George S. Walker, State Building and Loan Commissioner, that inasmuch as his opponent, Mr. Hayes, has received both Republican and Democratic nominations, he will not make an active canvass this fall for election to the House of Representatives, as he does not feel justified in so doing with a nomination of the Progressive party only. Should Walker win in November, it will be a case of the office seeking the man.

Carmel Incorporation Before Supervisors

The petition praying the Board of Supervisors of Monterey County for authority to submit to the voters the proposition to incorporate Carmel-by-the-Sea was presented to that body yesterday morning.

A delegation of Carmel citizens, consisting of J. F. Devendorf, A. P. Fraser, H. L. Warren and W. L. Overstreet placed the matter before the board, with the result that H. L. Warren was appointed census-taker, and at the next meeting of the board, should the census report be satisfactory, a date for voting upon the proposition will be set.

"All for the Sake of California"

The state board of education has published an interesting booklet of seventy pages on "California, the Story of Our State." It is intended as a text book in the fifth and sixth grades of the elementary schools and will be bound in as a supplement to the new Introductory History by Mace, which has just been rewritten for California schools. Though written for a child's mind the supplement will make interesting reading for adults. The book was written by P. V. Valentine, instructor in history and civics in the San Francisco normal school, and edited by Will C.
 Wood, commissioner of secondary schools in co-operation with members of the state board of education.
 Wood and Valentine have consulted the sources, including California newspapers of early days, in their efforts to insure accuracy of historical material.

The story of Spanish California and the missions is told in an interesting manner. The chapter dealing with the discovery of gold and the rush of the Argonauts carries much of the air of romance and daring of those times. It also deals with recent civic reforms and gives much prominence to the development of our state.

The illustrations have been carefully selected. Among the most interesting are a scene at Mission Dolores, San Francisco, showing the huts occupied by the Indians, a rodeo at San Gabriel Mission, San Francisco in 1849, Los Angeles in 1857, and the parent navel orange tree, still growing at Riverside.

The state board of education believes that California history is deserving of greater recognition in the schools.

WEEKLY GREETING

Every artist is a thinker whether he knows it or not; and ultimately no artist will be found greater as an artist than he was a thinker—David Masson.

Incorporation

The idea that the proponents of the proposed Carmel incorporation plan mean to put the matter through regardless of opposition or of justice should not be entertained for a moment. The matter is one for the whole community to decide and it will be so decided.

And another thing which the Pine Cone wants to make plain and emphatic is the statement that there is and will be no "slate" of candidates for election as officials should the proposition carry. At the proper time a public meeting will be held to nominate candidates, and all these candidates will come before all the voters.

Brilliant Young Inventor

John Hays Hammond, Jr., for the purchase of whose invention of a wireless torpedo controlling device both the House and the Senate of the United States have agreed to spend $750,000, is a resident of Gloucester, Mass., where most of his experiments in connection with this invention have been carried on. With the payment of this sum he will turn over to the government exclusive rights in patents and secrets for which he might have secured a much larger sum from other nations. Mr. Hammond is a graduate of the Sheffield scientific school of Yale University, an institution for which his father, John Hays Hammond, the expert mining engineer and multimillionaire, has done much in the way of benefactions. In addition to this wireless torpedo control device, Mr. Hammond is the originator of a system of aeroplane patrol of our national boundaries; and he has devised many more effective methods of dealing with incendiary projectiles, which have been approved by the United States army ordnance department. He served as one of the delegates from the United States to the radio-telegraph convention held in London in 1912.

MISSION BELLS

By GRACE MACFARLAND

Written for the Pine Cone

Carmelo's chimes of Mission bells

Has lured my heart to days long past:

The pious Padre, patient, tells

His beads, nor pauses till the last

Deep prayer is said. The tempting smells

Of pears just ripening and of flowers

That bloom unnoticed; the slow swells

Of restless waves that hurl salt showers

Of shimmering spray; the whitewashed cells

Where Padre Serra worked and died,

Afar from home; the sombre knells

That tolled when Padre Serra died.

I see the happy neophytes and hear

Light laughter of young lads and lassies near;

The rhythmic click of castanets; the sound

Of dainty slippers tapping on the ground.

I feel the reason of days that have no more.

I wake to hear the ocean's throbbing roar.

The magic of Carmelo's hills and bay

Has filled my heart. Henceforth I will not stray.

Nor pause nor weary till I lay before

Thy shrine the trophies of a conqueror;

And add my tiny wreath of worldly praise

To those thy heroes brought in vanished days.

Exhibit of Student Art Work

At the close of the Carmel Summer School of Art a year ago an exhibition of students' work was held which would have been creditable to many an older and well established school.

The summer session of the school this year will close on next Tuesday, to be followed with another exhibition of work done by the students of the school. It will be opened on Tuesday evening by a private view, to which members of the Arts and Crafts club and their friends are cordially invited. The exhibition will be open to the public from Wednesday to Saturday inclusive, 2 to 5 p.m.

This promises to be a better exhibition than the one of last year, and no one who is interested in the development of art in California can afford to miss this opportunity of seeing what is being done here in Carmel.

It is safe to say that there is not another summer school in the West where the work produced is of so high a standard and at the same time of such marked individuality.

The Carmel Summer School of Art bids fair to become one of the most important summer schools.

NEWS NOTES

There will be a meeting at Miss J. M. Culbertson's studio tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock to organize a chapter of the Red Cross Society. All interested are invited to be present.

Dr. J. L. D. Roberts was here bright and early Wednesday morning last thanking the voters of Carmel-by-the-Sea for the support given his candidacy for Supervisor on election day.

Several ladies who are interested in Red Cross work met at the home of Mrs. Philip Wilson one day last week. Mrs. W. S. McCay of Pasadena addressed the gathering.

Before the next issue of the Pine Cone, the 1916 Carmel Summer School of Art will be at an end.

Francis V. Keesling, commenting on the Johnson success, said: "The question of nomination was before the Republican party. Unhesitatingly I shall abide by that verdict."

In a football game at San Mateo last Saturday, George Hooper, captain of the Lowell team, had his shoulder broken. He will be out for the balance of the season. How about the drums, George?
